Stow On The Wold

Stow-on-the-Wold is a delightful market town and along with Moreton in Marsh, perhaps the best known of the north Cotswolds towns.

The vast Market Square testifies to the town's former importance. At one end stands the ancient cross, and at the other the town stocks, shaded between an old elm tree. Around the square the visitor is faced with an elegant array of Cotswold town houses and shops.

Stow is an important shopping centre and has many fine Antique shops, Art galleries, Gifts and Crafts and is a centre for walking the Cotswolds countryside.

- Markets have regularly taken place in Stow since 1107 when King Henry II granted a charter.
- Originally known as Edwardstow, the town was founded in the 11th century.

Chipping Campden

Chipping Campden is one of the loveliest small towns in the Cotswolds and a gilded masterpiece of limestone and craftsmanship. The main street curves in a shallow arc lined with a succession of ancient houses each grafted to the next but each with its own distinctive features

Chipping Campden was one of the most important of the medieval wool towns and famous throughout Europe. This legacy of fame and prosperity is everything that give the town its character.

- The vaulted roof of the Chipping Campden market hall
- Built in the 17th century with funds provided by Sir Baptist Hicks to provide some shelter for market traders.

Moreton-in-Marsh

Moreton-in-Marsh is another principal market town in the Cotswolds situated on the Fosse Way. It grew up in the thirteenth century as a market town with a wide main street, narrow burgage plots and back lanes. There still is a busy Tuesday market with about 200 stalls attracting many visitors.

- The broad High Street is lined with elegant 17th and 18th Century buildings,
- Among them the White Hart Royal, a former manor house in which King Charles I sheltered during the Civil War,

Chipping Norton

Chipping Norton is a bustling Cotswold market town at the 'Gateway to the Cotswolds' boasting a packed agenda of local festivals, markets and events. 'Chippy', as it is known to locals, was Market Town finalist in the Great British High Street of the Year Awards 2015.

Historic listed buildings include almshouses, the ancient Grade I listed church and impressive Town Hall. Quality independent shops and boutiques welcome the shopper.

- The almshouses date back to the early 17th Century and were funded by Henry Cornish who was a wealth investor in the town
